3 N.C.A. Men Examine OU's Academic Status

Any strangers in your classroom won't be from the C.I.A., but they will be spies.

The month of May will be examination time for Omaha U as well as its students. A three-man team from the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools will be on campus to study the present academic status of OU.

The examiners, who will be here May 1 - 3, are: Dean Robert Ray from the Univ. of Iowa, Dean Richard Byerrum from Michigan State U. and Dr. James M. Liphart from the Univ. of Wisconsin.

These gentlemen will compile a report which is to be reviewed by the North Central Association's accreditation commission.

"Omaha U will also present a report," says Dr. Robert O'Reilly, "as it is required to do every year." Dr. O'Reilly, who is Assistant Dean of the Graduate College here, is acting as coordinator for the N.C.A. visitors. "Each N.C.A. school is examined every ten years," he states.

Headquarters for the examiners will be the Regents' Room in the Administration Building. But only part of their work

Merger Will Cause 'Increased Demands'

"If the motto of the Chamber of Commerce is now 'Omaha Can Do,' the motto for Omaha University is the 'University of Omaha Will Do,'" said Acting President Kirk Naylor.

Dr. Naylor was optimistically reflecting upon the possibilities that the hoped-for OU-NU merger would bring.

One characteristic of the merger would be an increase in enrollment, says Naylor.

"With the merger will come an increase in enrollment and demands on the University that will tax the demands upon the University family like it hasn't been taxed before," he added.

The matter of student involvement on campus will also continue to grow. Dr. Naylor held a breakfast Monday morning with the Student Council to discuss some matters of great interest to students.

"It was agreed by common consent to discuss openly and frankly," Naylor commented.

Matters covered included the meaning of LB736 (merger) and LB #490 (junior college aid), tuition and fee schedule, Greek houses on campus, student governance and student apathy.

What is the price of student involvement?

Dr. Kirk Naylor answers by listing:

- (1) many hours of meetings;
- (2) disrupted schedules;
- (3) missed classes (when appropriate);
- (4) commitment of time;
- (5) perhaps loss of sleep;
- (6) worry;
- (7) criticism;
- (8) unwarranted attack; and
- (9) frustration.

Dr. Naylor concluded that "students must be able to pay the price of involvement. I hardly agree with students wanting to become involved."

Gateway Has Ouampi Rival?

On Monday a "newsheet" called "The Lone Haranguer" mysteriously appeared in the Ouampi Room. Two days later came the second edition.

Monday's copy anonymously attacked Gateway reporter Lothar A. Luken. Of the attack, Lothar said, "The Independents who wrote this think I am a Judas because I am an independent who doesn't hate Greeks. Social standing has nothing to do with this (May 10) election."

Lothar was "very well pleased" with the caricature of himself and said he plans to run for Student Council. He was very much displeased with the attack on the Ma-je Day candidates.

Gateway To Interview Council Candidates

All petitions for both Student Council and Ma-je Day candidates are due in Student Center Rm. 250 by noon Wednesday.

As a service to the student body, The Gateway will interview Student Council candidates. Candidates should come to Rm. 116 Engg Building anytime between 10:30 a.m. till 4:30 p.m. today.

School elections will be held Wednesday, May 10.

Any fulltime student at the University interested in editing The GATEWAY during the Fall 1967 semester is invited to make application. Forms are available from (and should be returned to) Dr. Paul V. Peterson, Director of Student Publications, in Room 116 Eng. Bldg. Deadline for applications is May 1.

Senior Art Major Mrs. Kathy Gruenau turns out a piece of pottery for the art auction.

Art To Be Auctioned Sunday

The Art Club auction will be held Sunday in the first floor lounge of the student center from 1-5 p.m.

The paintings, drawings, sculptures, ceramics and prints will be on display tomorrow from 7-9 p.m.

The auction will be held on both an oral and written basis. Sheets of paper will be attached to the works for written bids. The object will go to the highest bidder.

Other objects will be auctioned off orally in the billiards room.

According to Tim McDonald, Art Club president, each contributing student will receive 75 per cent of the price paid for his work. This money will go towards his next semester's tuition.

As for seniors the money may go towards graduate school or they may keep the money if not returning to school.

The remaining 25 per cent goes to the Art Club. The money is used to pay for the club's annual trip.

In previous years, the club has traveled to Chicago and New York. According to faculty advisor Tom Majeski a site has not yet been picked for the next trip. Faculty works will be given away as door prizes. "A five-dollar fee makes one eligible for the prizes."

Coed of the Week

Gotta Travel On

Coed Pat O'Neil likes to travel. The 19-year-old sophomore also likes the great outdoors and will serve as a camp counselor this summer. Pat has a double major in education and sociology. The future junior high teacher is rush chairman of Sigma Kappa sorority and recent initiate of Angel Flight.

The GATEWAY is published weekly by students of the University of Omaha Department of Journalism. Editorial comment and letters to the editor do not necessarily represent opinions of the faculty, administration or student body.

A Spark - Then A Flame?

What is the "proper" role of a student body?

A wornout phrase says that students are apathetic and don't really care.

However as the May 10 OU Student Council election nears, a spark of interest has been kindled. Maybe the optimism of the impending OU-NU merger has ignited student thinking.

The interest is diverse. It ranges from "The Lone Haranguer" to Greek concern over an Independent "takeover," with most students somewhere in between.

Competition has its merits. However, it shouldn't be the Greeks vs the Independents in elections. Instead, competition should be among students (minus any Greek or Independent social label) who are willing to pay the price of involvement in student government.

Letters To The Editor

DeLine Applauds "Harangue"

Dear Sir,

Plaudits and a year's supply of Scope to the originators of the Lone Harangue. It is without a doubt the freshest piece of writing witnessed on this campus in a long time. Long live the Harangue and its principles. Who knows, if it keeps up, maybe independents will overthrow the OUampi Room and take command of the mail box which seems to be the vocal point of Greek Row.

Apathy has reigned at OU for so long that students probably won't know how to react to such a publication. I, for one, have long been among the apathetic followers who paid his tuition and let everyone (i.e. the Greeks) speak for him.

But, now the irritation from Greek pressure and domination have taken their toll. The cliques have had their way too long. I, for one, will support any movement to make the University a two party school, not a contest between Greek favorites. Long live the Lone Harangue and its land of Id. Who knows, that land might offer this school a better place in the sun than does Mt. Olympus. Long live the Greek dynasty, may its death be peaceful.

James E. DeLine

FOcus Question 'Faulty'

Editor of The Gateway:

In regards to the Focus question about Dr. Newton's class in April 14, Gateway just who does this person think he is? Some disgruntled former student who didn't get a grade as high as he would like?

Grow up, little kid, leave Dr. Newton alone for your own inadequacies! Or maybe it was a student in the experimental psychology class?

Dr. Newton didn't force you to come, he said you could come if you so desired! I can't think of anyone who could lower themselves to such depths. To find something about a professor to destructively criticize.

A one time incident such as a class during a convocation should have been ignored. If students want to comment find something important!

Signed,
Diane Guild

Letters To The Editor

Athens - Greek Backbone Stiffens

To the Lemon Meranguer (opps!) — Lone Haranguer:

You were right in stating that your publication was an unauthorized, unbudgeted piece of litter.

From your obvious lack of organization and INDEPENDENT opinions, it is apparent why you must resort to slamming individuals and not just groups or ideas. It takes an awfully small person to attack people with remarks such as yours and not have the guts to sign your name.

Greeks have consistently supported ALL campus organizations and have carried many. Our interest in an all-around education based on academics, activities and social and athletic endeavors points out all the more strongly why the Greeks are the backbone of this campus' activities.

Your snide remarks about the Ma-ie Day Princess candidates were totally unwarranted and showed absolutely no class. The activities these girls participate in and the people they know probably far out number your associations.

The only conclusion that we can come to is that you are like an outsider looking in and obviously know that the grass is greener in Athens.

Two Greeks

Dumpi Room Closing Hailed

Dear Editor,

It is always easy to complain of the things that are unsightly and irritating at OU and we think that when something shows great improvement it should be complimented.

Therefore, we want to compliment the Circle K for initiating the OUampi Room clean up and the cooperation of the student body in making it a room to be proud of. Keep up the good work.

The Staff of the M.B.S.C.

Biased Gateway Reports

Dear Editor,

Not being a journalism or English student, I've come to you for enlightenment. What, please, should be the main functions of a school newspaper? I thought it was reporting. And if it is, what is good reporting? Shouldn't it be an attempt to present the facts as accurately as possible — unbiased, complete, unembellished? Or is the school paper to be used as a vehicle to show off a "reporters" literary talents? Or to give the editor an opportunity to use his position to mow down his critics?

I'm still boiling about John Weber's full page "drama" on the College Bowl. If he must display his ability to write plays wouldn't the "Grain of Sand" be a more appropriate showcase than The Gateway? Other than an extremely unfair slap at Gary, his asinine article said nothing. It's too bad.

The team's New York trip and studio experience would have made a good story. John Weber knew that the four students were entitled to praise they never received. So he gives us quotes from his tape recorder. That's reporting?

Lothar Luken at least has courage and zip. Thankfully he doesn't write flattery by sugar-coated stupidity. But Mr. Luken, after a thoughtful reading of last week's article, can you honestly say you wrote them without bias? Have you no personal motive to promote?

Just asking,

Kathryn Reisser

Ed. Note: Mr. Luken has declared a self-imposed ban on any writing for The Gateway until after the elections since he has announced candidacy for the Student Council.

Craig Reisser, College Bowl team member, is the son of Mrs. Kathryn Reisser.

'What We Need Is Action'

Dear Editor:

I have been enrolled at Omaha University for three semesters and during this time, I have heard much said about the apathy of the student body and the student council — none of it is true, of course.

I have heard the student council being referred to a group of guys and dolls who upon being elected go home to Mom and Dad, tell them about their newly won (important) position, tell all their relatives about the good news and forget the students who elected them.

They don't sound opinion to see what the students want. They don't develop a path of communication between the student body, in general, and themselves.

Ah yes, they don't do a lot of things — so I am told, but they do plan parties.

But of late, there has been a new attitude developing and I, for one, am happy to see it come about. I don't think everything on this campus is fine and good. No, I believe there are things we as students can change and should change. What we need is ACTION.

This could be initiated soon and it should be. We are sitting on the biggest piece of action that has taken place for the last decade in Nebraska education. It is the merger between two great schools. It is something that will affect our future and that of our children (if we have any and admit it).

But we shouldn't be sitting; we should be standing or marching or something. We should let our feelings be known.

Rally around the flag and all that jazz. How about it — Leaders?

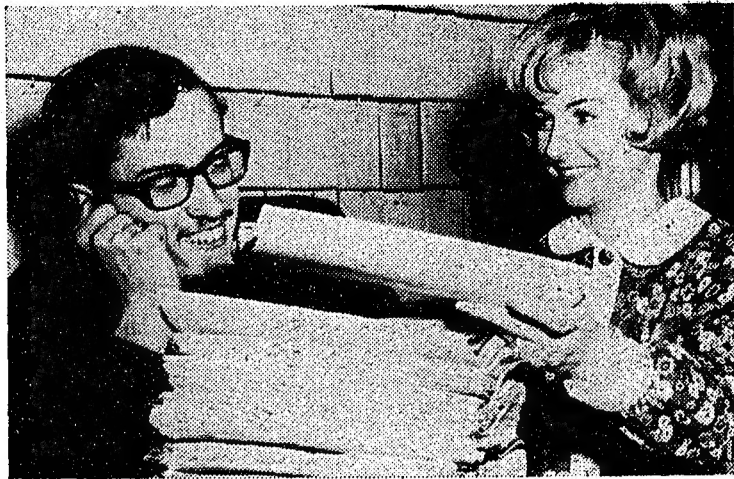

What do we do? Sit and watch the ball roll down the hill or stand for something!

Respectfully,

D. D. Den-Hartog

P.S. Maybe the tuition will drop or does everybody have more money than I do?

'T' For Two

The 1967 Tomahawk Editor Diane Berry indicates how much work is in store for her successor, Lothar A. Luken.

Diane's book has arrived on campus and will be in students' hands starting Monday (see box p. 1). Lothar's book is in the planning stage.

Drama Gives 'Life'

By Clarence W. Wilson

In today's fast paced world there is not much room for poetry, because of its subtleties and the fact that thought is necessary to gain understanding.

But be that as it may, the OU University Theater presented last Friday, Saturday and Sunday a dramatic interpretation of the Stephen Vincent Benet poem, "John Brown's Body."

The eleven members of the OU cast presented a strong and forceful interpretation of Benet's counterpoint weaving of several small plots concerning fictional characters into the main plot which we know as the actual history of the Civil War.

Allan Parham who portrayed the fictional character Jack Ellyat and Ira Raznick, who portrayed the fictional, Clay Wingate, wandered like zombies across the stage repeating their lines in portrayal of the devastating effects of a civil war.

Raznick, in the part of Wingate, a Southern plantation owner, does a zombie-like dance with his Southern belle as he views the destruction of his entire future.

Again, I would like to give special plaudits to the lighting crew. The lighting was effective and necessary because it was needed to give the effect of scene changes.

John Brown's body may be "a' moulderin' in the grave," but this past semester the University Theater has arisen with new life.

I hope that this new life will get stronger.

Picketing students rallied around the Courthouse last Saturday morning.

Cary Leads Movement, Supports Vietnam GI's

The signs read "Protest Groups Quit Crying While Real Americans Are Dying," and "When The Going Gets Tough, The Tough Get Going."

They were carried in a crowd of over 50 students, newsmen and police in front of the Courthouse Saturday in the latest effort of the Back Our Boys In Vietnam movement.

It all started back on April 15, when a slim, 23-year-old ex-GI, currently a freshman at Omaha University, staged a one-man demonstration on the courthouse lawn in support of the Vietnam war.

Michael Cary found the reaction "90 per cent favorable," and began soliciting help on other campuses in the area; a law student at Creighton, a student at the Job Corps. He also found several ministers and radio disc jockeys helpful.

Organized Support

The purpose of the Back Our Boys In Vietnam movement is to organize enough support behind the organization, in Cary's words, "to be carried on the AP wire, and eventually reach Vietnam in military magazines and papers."

Michael, who served in Korea,

Thailand and other Far Eastern countries, now has a brother, Robert Cary, stationed with the First Cavalry in Vietnam.

"One of the greatest morale-defeaters over there," he said intensely, "are the reports of all the anti-Vietnam demonstrations in this country."

The Back Our Boys In Vietnam movement, hopefully, will put things in proper perspective.

Local Encouragement

The movement has received much encouragement from local officials, and Cary disclosed happily that it might be represented in the Memorial Day Parade. "We might have John Hlavacek to help, also," he added.

Cary emphasized that the organization is not interested in giving reasons, either for or against, our military involvement in the Southeast Asian country. "We're just interested in letting our soldiers know that there is someone over here supporting them," he said.

Anyone interested in further plans of the Back Our Boys In Vietnam program can contact Cary at 393-7607.

Around Campus

Spring In The Air

Omaha University's Orchestris, modern dance honorary, will hold its annual highlight, the spring Dance Concert, this Sunday evening.

The concert will be presented at 8 p.m. in the Administration Building auditorium. Admission is free.

Show Goes Baroque

The OU Baroque Singers will present their first program in the Conference Center Auditorium tonight at 8 p.m.

The Singers, under the direction of Dr. Robert Ruetz, will be accompanied by a Baroque orchestral ensemble of violins, violoncello, flute, oboe and harpsichord.

The program is open to the public.

Students At Play

"An Evening of Student-Directed One-Act Plays" will be presented May 5 at 8:30 p.m. in the Ad. Auditorium.

Student directors and their casts have been working for a month on the plays. Since time will not permit all of the plays to be presented only three will be staged.

The three plays will be selected by Dr. Edwin Clark, director of University Theatre, Robert Welk, technical director of the Theatre and Mike Barton, associate director of the Theatre.

The plays and directors are: The Happy Journey to Camden and Trenton, Ken Hanon; He, Larry French; A Slight Ache, Virginia Thomas; The Case of the Crushed Petunias, Jean Frandy; Still Alarm, Judy Kirkpatrick; and Sandbox, Joe Panebianco.

Tickets for the plays are free with an activity ticket, and may be reserved at the box office from 9-2:30 p.m., May 3-5.

Spring Sing

The University of Omaha Choir will present its Spring Concert in the Student Center Ballroom May 2 at 8 p.m.

The complete Requiem by Gabriel Faure will be sung by the chorus and accompanied by the OU Chamber Orchestra. Soloists for the Requiem are Barbara Johnson, soprano, and Robert Schroeder and Steve Soucek, baritones.

The Chamber Orchestra is under the supervision of Kermil Peters, assistant professor of music.

The chorus will pay tribute to the Nebraska Centennial by singing a composition composed by Robert Beadell, Nebraska University music faculty member. The composition will be conducted by Steve Soucek, OU music major.

John Bohrer, assistant professor of music in charge of choral activities at OU, will direct the hour-long concert.

The Tuesday evening concert is free.

Making The Rounds

Acting President Kirk Naylor has been recently making the rounds visiting groups of alumni all over the country.

His latest trips to Los Angeles and Chicago were made with Warren Wittekind, alumni secretary.

The purpose of the trips has been to give the alums the feeling that they are still part of a growing university. Wittekind said, "It is difficult to make the alums feel close to OU. They need to be informed of the changes. Their financial help is very important to the university."

The meetings have been successful in informing the alums. It is hoped that chapters can be set up throughout the country with an eye to more organized support of the university.

Lead On, James

Ten students in a recreation leadership class are sponsoring a party for orphans Wednesday evening at 6:30.

Jim Phillips is the chairman. Others assisting are Ray Loden, Jim Herman, Steve Haborack, Bob Bruckner, Joe Luengo, Sharon Schneiderwind, Rick Coleman, Fred Schroeder and Gary Paparello.

The party will be at St. James Orphanage.

A Fix In Time...

Minor repairs will take up most of the $50,000 appropriated for the summer projects at the University.

According to Dean George Rachford the projects go on all through the year, but the biggest part is taken care of in the summer when not as many students are on campus.

Repairing the Field House roof and painting are items on the agenda.

Catch McCoy's Organ

Bill McCoy, staff organist for the Thomas Organ Company and famed theater organist on the West Coast, will present an OU midnight concert tomorrow.

He will play eleven musical numbers on the Orpheum Theatre's Wurlitzer organ in conjunction with the silent slap-stick movie "The Four Orphans."

Tickets are free with an activity card and can be picked up at the University Box Office on the first floor of the Ad Building today.

Tomorrow night, at the Orpheum, tickets will go on sale to the general public for $1.50; however, if there are any left, students will be able to get tickets at the door with their activity card.

A Sher-Fire Deal

The extra time allowed for preparation of entries for the Philip Sher Essay Contest has had little affect to date on the number of works entered.

With one week remaining before the deadline date students are still encouraged to prepare an essay containing a statement of the problems concerning race and religious respect in the United States and a consideration of a solution to these problems.

Entries, entitled "Racial and Religious Mutual Respect", should contain no fewer than 2,000 and no more than 3,000 words on typed, double spaced, 8½" by 11" sheets of good quality paper.

A $250 cash prize will be awarded to the essay judged to be the best organized, thorough, original and expressed.

Additional information may be obtained from the Office of the Dean of Student Personnel, Rm. 240, Ad. Building.

Needy Teachers

Applications for service in the Teacher Corps are now available in Dr. Floyd Waterman's office, Ad 229.

The Teacher Corps is a graduate work-study program that trains college graduates in the special methods needed to teach disadvantaged youngsters.

Currently working in 275 of the nation's neediest schools, eleven in the Omaha area, the Corps combines two years of tuition-free graduate study with on-the-job training in the classroom. After two years on service, Corpsman may receive a Master's Degree and will be eligible for permanent teacher certification.

Leave Them A Loan

There will be two new forms of financial aid for OU students next fall.

The first form of aid is a grant of $32,000, which will come from the U.S. Office of Education through the Educational Opportunity Grant program.

The second form of aid is $600 from the Alumni Association to be used for short term loans.

Mr. William Gerbracht, who handles the student aid programs, says the money will probably be used for $25 or $30 loans so students can buy books if they just have enough for tuition.

Loans will be smaller or larger depending on the demand.

Friendly Persuasion?

First place speech honors went to Roger Sutton and Gregg Loso Monday night. Roger topped the persuasive speaking competition, while Gregg was first in oral interpretation.

First place winners received $10 each as well as a trophy. Second place winners were Steve Boguchwal, persuasion, and Judy Kirkpatrick, interpretation; each received $5.

Runnersup in persuasive speaking were Felton Hall, Sharon Rodgers and Ellen Berman. Dave Clopton, Gerald Watson and Cary Mills were runnersup in oral interpretation.

A total of 30 entrants appeared in the contests revived by the speech department.

A Family Affair

"Shenandoah" is next Monday's OUampi Room feature.

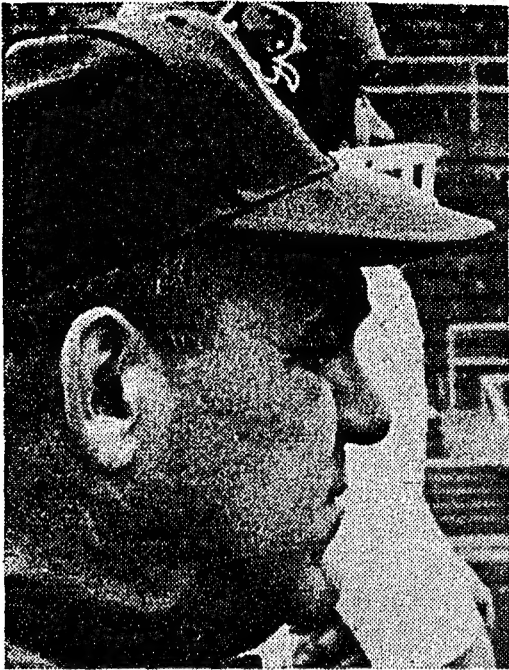

The movie stars Jimmie Stewart and concerns the events that effect one family after the Civil War.

Next week the screen will glow with a real classic. The star-studded cast includes Clu Gullager, Angie Dickinson, and Governor Ronald Reagan.

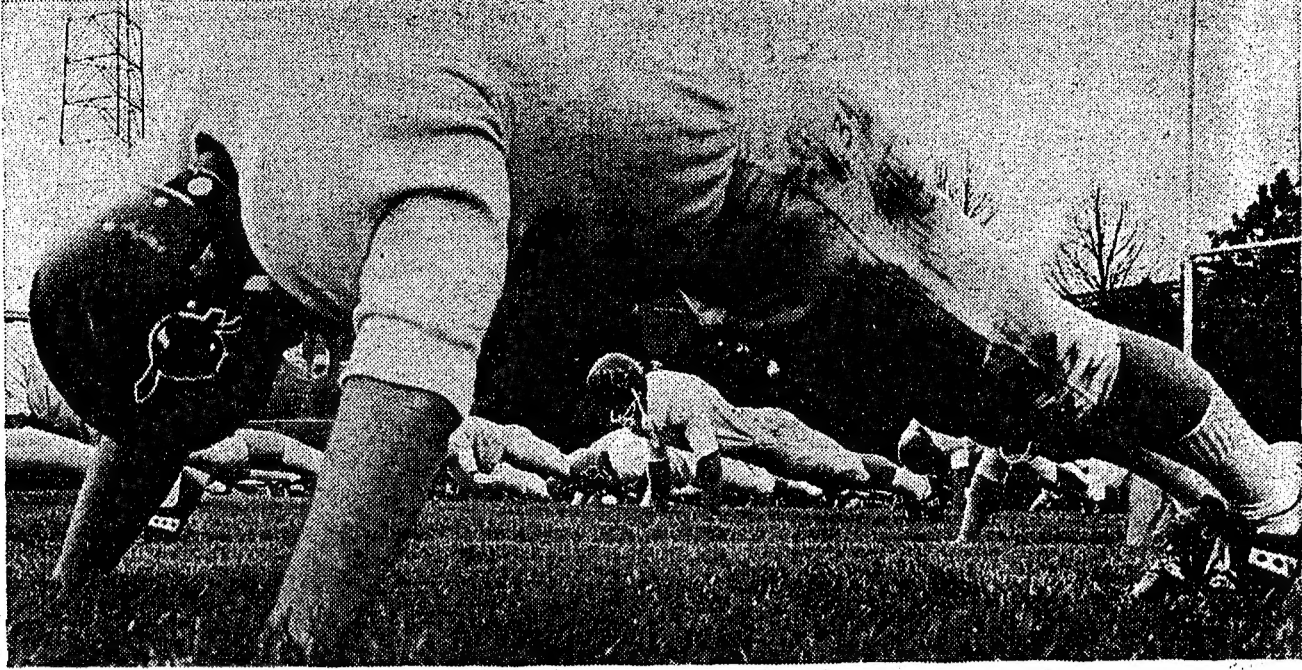

Highlighting the cast is Lee Marvin whose warmth and charm in his role will immediately endear him to you.

"The Killers" are on their way.

Squad Game For Grants

By Jaey Sedlacek

Omaha University's spring football team will go under the lights of Westside Stadium next Friday for the intra-squad game.

Game time for the Red vs. Whites clash is 7:30.

Students will have to pay for the previously free game. Tickets for adults will be $1 and $.50 for students.

The Spring game was moved off campus and scheduled at night by the urging of Dr. Francis Hurst, of the Athletic Committee.

Athletic officials have also decided to charge admission for the first time to aid the athletic scholarship program.

Tickets for the spring game at 7,000 seat Westside Stadium may be obtained at the University or at the gate that night.

On another football matter, Caniglia said he does not know what will be done to replace head backfield coach Ken Fischer.

Fischer has accepted a similar post at young Hiram Scott College. Fischer has been at OU since 1960.

Indian strongman Ed Jackson is reported out for the season.

Jackson, a 230-pound tackle from Ohio, irritated an old knee injury during Wednesday's workout. He has been advised to avoid all contact in an effort to prevent permanent injury.

Sophomore Jack Holder Top OU Ace

Robyn Carmichael

Assigning a girl to do an interview with Jack Holder, one of the Omaha Indians' top pitchers, was, at first thought, a traumatic prospect.

Not that I didn't feel as qualified to write the story as any other girl. An ardent baseball fan since early childhood, I even attempted to play the game myself during a brief stint as a tomboy, (a phase quickly abandoned when I discovered it was not only much more fun being a girl, but that I didn't play good baseball anyway.)

Still, my feminine knowledge of the sport, (I get lost beyond the fourth set of abbreviations on the scorecard) might have contributed to the tall right-hander's apprehensive air when I first met him.

Jack Holder started playing baseball in his native Council

Holder ... Ace

Bluffs when he was ten-years-old. He came up through the ranks of the Little League program to play on three state champion teams for Thomas Jefferson High School.

A 1964 graduate, Holder abandoned plans to attend Iowa State University and spent a semester at Dana before coming to OU in the spring of last year.

He promptly set about maintaining the tradition by carrying home a 6-0 win record last year.

And the serious-minded 20-year-old is philosophically optimistic about the current season: "By the time the CIC tournament rolls around, we'll have a better team than last year," he said decisively.

While some problems have been caused by inexperience, Jack thinks "with a little luck, we will go all the way in the tournament."

The loss of the home baseball diamond has been a major hindrance to team workouts.

"A lot of things could have been covered by now in workouts on our own field," the pitcher said thoughtfully.

But he doesn't feel the loss has damaged morale extensively, even though it has forced more road games.

OU's hardest competition, according to the physical education major, will be Minot State in the tournament, but "the toughest part will be just getting there. We can't afford to make too many errors."

Pitchers on the road are subject to a lot of heckling, but Holder, flashing a rare smile, shrugged it off.

"Actually, it's kind of funny, and sometimes it even helps," he said warmly. "It's usually the smart aces who say things that you want to beat the worst."

He didn't tell me what they say.

If the fans don't bother him, what about the batters he faces?

"A batter doesn't psych me out," Jack said levelly. If one starts hitting his pitches, he explained he can always "dust him off" to shatter his confidence.

He much prefers, though, to let a batter "psych himself out" by throwing pitches he can't hit.

Despite his impressive list of wins, 3-0 in the young season, Holder has no illusions of making baseball a profession. He's aiming for a coaching job on the high school level.

"If I had the opportunity to play professional ball, I would," he concluded, "but I'd never drop out of school just to try out for a team unless I was guaranteed some pretty decent money."

Rockhurst Tackles Indian's 11-4 Slate

By John Whisman

The Indians upped their season mark to 11-4 going into tonight's fray with Rockhurst at Rosenblatt Stadium. The first game of the doubleheader stars at 7 p.m.

By sweeping doubleheaders from Wichita and South Dakota State the Indians proved that they are a team to be reckoned with.

Tonight the Indians meet a Rockhurst squad that boasts only three wins in 13 outings. One of the victories came from rugged Washburn. Washburn won the opening game of the two-game series, but Rockhurst rallied for a 5-4 win in the nightcap.

Monday night Wayne State will invade Rosenblatt for a doubleheader with the Indians. The bright spot of Wayne is third-baseman Bob Gaeta.

Gaeta was tabbed to the NAIA All American squad last year as a junior.

Wayne State has long been one of the bigger rivals of the Indians. Creighton dropped the Wayne Staters last week in a doubleheader evening the Wayne record to 5-5.

Earlier in the season the Indians blasted the Creighton Jays 11-8.

If the last four games are any indication, the Indians appear to be rounding into shape for the upcoming CIC Championships.

After dropping Wichita, the Indians traveled to Brookings, South Dakota and handed South Dakota State two losses.

SDS is the North Central conference defending champ and is one of the favorites again this year. Before the Indians invaded, SDS was 11-3 on the season.

The two SDS pitchers the Indians faced were dealt their first defeats of the season.

Jack Holder continued to stymie opposing bats as he collected his fifth win this year and upped his collegiate mark to 11-0.

Harold Lenz had the big bat in the opener as he rapped out three of the six OU hits.

In the nightcap, OU unleashed an 11-hit attack while chasing three SDS hurlers to the showers in a 9-2 rout.

Larry Gomez, Bob Davis, Ron Bernth and Larry Wood all had two hits, and all had a double in the nightcap.

Larry Wood turned in a spectacular performance from the mound for the Indians as he allowed only three hits.

'65 Kicker Improved

Former Omaha University football player, George Blankenship is reported improving in a Japanese hospital.

He was injured several weeks ago by a booby trap explosion while he was patrolling near Saigon.

George's mother, Mrs. Charles Blankenship, of 3524 North 47 Avenue says he has graduated from crutches to a cane.

The mother said she expected him out of the hospital by the end of the month. He will be returned to Viet Nam, but she does not think he will return to battle.

Bob Williams Aids Netmen

By Chynne Koser

"He's a good little tennis player."

This is tennis Coach Jim Borsheim's opinion of freshman Bob Williams.

In a game where height is an advantage, Bob is little. At 5-feet-9-inches, he is the shortest player on the team.

Lefty . . . Williams

Bob is a graduate of North High where he played varsity tennis for two years. "I didn't play tennis at all before my junior year. I got interested because North had a good tennis team," Bob said.

"They won five state championships in a row," he added with a smile.

A self-taught left-hander, Bob knows his disadvantages. "I don't have a strong serve (which is important in this game), or good strokes, so I just try to out hustle the other guy."

This philosophy of determination has worked well for him so far. His senior year at North, he won all his matches except one.

Today at 1:00 p.m., OU's tennis team meets Emporia State College at Dewey Park.

"It'll be one of our toughest matches," said coach Jim Borsheim.

Last Tuesday's match against last year's champs, Washburn, was postponed due to wet courts. It will be played later in the season.

"Being left-handed is a slight advantage. My forehand is usually the backhand of a right-handed player, and this is confusing at first," Bob commented.

"Desire is important in this game, as well as a good serve and good strokes," Bob said. "Tennis is an individual sport . . . you can be as good as you want and go as far as you want."

Bob is a Theta Chi and a journalism major. He works part time as a copy boy at the World-Herald. "I don't know for sure what I want to do but I'm getting a lot of experience at the World-Herald."

At Ring Side

with

John Whisman

Although the football season isn't even around the corner yet, spring drills indicate a return to success by the 1967 Indians.

With the return of Marlin Briscoe to the quarterback helm, the Indians should win the conference again. With the versatile magician again calling signals OU must be in the title picture.

After the bleak 1-9 record last year the Indians will of course be trying to reverse the figures.

In a recent interview with Briscoe, the veteran stated that this year's Spring drills have the same potential as the 8-2 team of 1965.

Briscoe added that although this year's squad doesn't have the '65 size they are quicker, faster and have a great attitude.

Commenting on the scrimmage held last Friday Briscoe stated that the defense hit harder than any unit he's seen since he was a freshman.

Keys To Success: Haas, Davis

With the return of Briscoe the offense should be able to open up and play a wide open game again. The scrambling Briscoe is the reason for the diversified attack.

When injured last year, Head Coach Al Caniglia was forced to use Bill Haas as the number one signal caller. With Haas at the helm the offense was limited in its effectiveness, because of Haas' drop-back style. The offense just wasn't used to that type of attack.

When asked to give away some of his secrets of success Briscoe revealed a couple of sure keys. These two keys are Bill Haas and Rick Davis as pass receivers.

Briscoe said that Haas was his favorite target on short yardage situations. The reason for this being that Haas is big, has strong hands and he's hard for opponents to bring down.

Rick Davis was Briscoe's favorite target on long yardage plays. Davis is considered a double threat by Briscoe.

Signal Caller . . . Briscoe

Davis has the uncanny ability to get loose for the bomb, catch the ball and head for the goal line.

This same combination of Briscoe to Haas, or Briscoe to Davis brought good results in '65 and should bring the same this year.

Halfback To Quarterback

Reminiscing with Briscoe brought peculiar answers by the signal caller. Briscoe said he began playing football early in grade school. He wanted to be halfback but since his early teams needed a quarterback, and he threw the ball the best he was drafted.

Since those early days of sandlot ball Briscoe has been a quarterback.

When asked to answer what his greatest thrill in football was Briscoe, puzzled for a moment, answered "playing defense his freshman year at OU."

When Briscoe enrolled in 1964 the Indians had a great quarterback in Carl Meyers so Briscoe was forced to play defense for a time.

As a quarterback Briscoe recalls the comeback victory over Pittsburg State in 1965 for the CIC crown as his biggest thrill while playing quarterback.

Until last year Briscoe could not remember ever sitting out so many games. This he said was his lowest ebb, not being able to help his team.

Plans Include Pro's

Publicity doesn't seem to bother the cool, modest field general. He said that he feels no pressure from any publicity he receives.

Much publicity was given him last year when he was injured for the season. Coach Caniglia was accused of gearing the team around Briscoe, which he didn't.

The offense was geared around the wide open style that the Indians were allowed because of the scrambling Briscoe. When the injury occurred Caniglia was unable to find another scrambler like Briscoe.

With two receivers like Haas and Davis the passing attack should click well.

With backs like Greg Kavan, Steve Havorak, Gary Papporella and Ron Sayers pounding into the line, defensive lines will probably be bruised badly by Sunday morning.

Pro football is in Briscoe's plans. Briscoe said he would very much like to play pro if he has the ability at either offensive quarterback or as a defensive back. Teams from both the AFL and NFL have approached him.

Drake Relays Today; SDS Beat OU 129-29

The University of Omaha is in Des Moines today for the 58th running of the Drake Relays which is scheduled to attract more than five hundred athletes.

The team will travel to Topeka, Kansas, May 3, for a dual with Washburn University and on May 6 they will vie in the Howard Wood Relays in Sioux Falls, S. D., before returning home on the ninth for a dual with Peru State.

Tuesday the track team suffered their worst defeat of the season at the hand of South Dakota State University, by a score of 129-29.

The only bright spot in the meet for OU was first place vaulting effort by John Cvitak with a ten-foot effort.

Cvitak also took third in the Long Jump.

Paul Gubi placed third in 330-hurdles, 120-high hurdles, javelin and tied for first in the high jump to score most of OU's points.

Gordon Sweeney ran second in the 880-yd event.

New Cheerleaders

Cheerleaders for 1967-68 were chosen last Friday. They are Jean Arringdale, Judy Clodfelder, Leslie Eggers, Joanie Fulton, Roxi Holmes, Linda Kollert, Shirley Newcomer, and Roberta Saeger.

Indian Duffers Dump Dana

OU golfers beat Dana 14½-1½ but lost to Creighton 9-6 in a triangular meet this week.

Creighton also overcame Dana 14-1.

Low man for OU was Jim Thompson with a 76. Lonnie Jensen scored 82, Don Blotzer, 83, Ted Taylor, 84 and Jim Garrett, 86.

Jensen, Blotzer and Thompson won both their matches.

will be conducted there. They will talk to administrative personnel, faculty members, students and visit classrooms. They will appreciate all help and cooperation extended to them.

Constructive Action

Dr. O'Reilly says it is OU's policy to consider the recommendations and criticisms of the commission as a basis for constructive action by the University. He continued by saying that the N.C.A. does not grant or revoke accreditation on the strength or weakness of one department.

Evaluations Made

Two members of OU's faculty who have had experience as N.C.A. examiners, were queried as to what they looked for when visiting a college.

Dr. Paul C. Kennedy says that, "How close a school comes to established criteria," is one of the evaluations made. In the field of teacher education he continued, he will try to determine if the student-teacher is being provided the experience required. He may visit community schools to gain this information.

Dean of the College of Education, Frank Gorman, says many areas will be delved into, including the school's budget, library, faculty, condition of buildings and equipment, the regents, business manager, student records and student opinions.

The examiners will look at the general picture of a school, says Dean Gorman. "To determine if the school is doing the job it wants to do."

Merger Bill Passes

By Gary Larsen

Thursday, April 20, 1967, is a date that will go down in University history.

On that day, the Nebraska Legislature approved a bill initiating a merger between the University of Omaha and the University of Nebraska.

The next step in the proceedings will put the merger question up before Omaha voters for their approval.

Should Omahans give their support to the merger, the final obstacle to the union would be overcome and OU would assume a new role as the University of Nebraska-Omaha.

Gateway reporters, in Lincoln the day of the final voting, gathered varied observations from some of the key figures involved in the merger.

OU Acting President Kirk Naylor said, "I think this is just wonderful. It's the greatest thing that could have happened to this University."

Regents President Robert Spire, also present for the final vote, added, "This is a great step forward for higher education in Nebraska and a great show of confidence, by the legislators, in higher education."

Governor Pleased, Others Not

Dr. Clayton Yeutter, Administrative Assistant to Governor Tiemann, stated that the Governor had worked very hard for the merger, and that he was "extremely pleased" with the acceptance of the bill.

"The Governor," continued Yeutter, "did manage to 'take certain measures' to assure passage of the bill."

Earlier in the morning, before the final vote, Bartley Senator Lester Harsh, moved that the merger bill be returned to select file for an amendment to make the merger effective in 1969.

After spirited discussion by several senators including Bellevue senator Dale Payne, Omaha senator Sam Klaver, and Ross Rasmussen, of Hooper, a vote was taken on Harsh's motion.

The motion was defeated by a 28-15 margin, but only two votes would have had to change sides to have meant passage.

No Emergency, Bill Passes

Amid the clicking of the vote tabulation machine, all eyes were fixed on the tally board at the front of the chamber.

As the red and green lights flashed on, it became evident that the vote would be fairly close.

However, on the next vote, with the clause dropped, the bill passed by a 31-18 vote.

Typical of the favorable comments was that of Omaha Senator Florence Reynolds, a retired school teacher, who said, "I voted for the bill because I believe it is beneficial and I want the people of Omaha to have the chance to vote on it."

No Legislative Conflict

Senator Carpenter stated, "This is the greatest step that any state has taken in education at one time. It will build OU to a point it should have reached years ago."

OU instructor and state senator Richard Marvel summed up his views by stating, "I assume that the financial officials of OU and Nebraska will be contacting the budget committee (of which Marvel is the chairman) in the near future."

Within three months, the Grecian poster should materialize into the real Acropolis for Junior Noel Weimer.

Coed To Travel As Ambassador

Greece will become the second home for an OU coed this summer.

Noel Weimer was notified less than a week ago that she would be Omaha University's ambassador to Greece. She said "I am thoroughly thrilled and very much honored to receive the ambassadorship."

She was one of three finalists this year as well as last year.

Noel begins her ambassadorship in the United States. In June, she starts an intensive three-week language training program at Brattleboro, Vt.

Later she will be one of 10 American college students cruising via oceanliner to Greece.

In Greece, she will spend one month with her "family." Her second month will be filled with travel around Greece, which will end in late August.

The Experiment In International Living program "calls itself," says Noel, "and rightly so, a program for international living."

International Living

"By introducing the people of one country to another through the basic social unit of the family, significant strides toward international peace are achieved. All of this is done on a person-to-person, individual level," she adds.

The junior English major has adopted one of the experiment's mottos: "Expect the unexpected."

Even though she doesn't know who her Grecian "family" will be, Noel says she will participate in all its everyday activities.

Sociological Interest

"All experimenters benefit from the program by finding that cultural values are relative and that life must be taken in a different perspective. This makes you more aware of international as well as interpersonal relations," she commented.

The Gilbert M. and Martha H. Hitchcock Foundation is providing $1,000 for Noel's ambassadorship. This amounts to about 85 per cent of the expenses.

When told she would have to get eight medical shots, Grecian Ambassador Noel Weimer said, "My arms ache already."

Archer, Houchin Vie For Queen

Two OU coeds are competing for the coveted title of Nebraska State College Queen.

Janet Archer and Judy Houchin are two of the four finalists in the Nebraska contest.

The Nebraska winner will win a 10-day trip to New York to compete in the National Contest to choose the National College Queen.

The Nebraska winner is chosen by a vote of the students on the Nebraska college campuses. OU students may cast their ballots at the Student Center Information Desk or in the office of The Gateway, Engg. 116.

Janet is a home economics major with a regents scholarship. She was named Corinthian "Scholar of the Month" last May.

OU's state finalists in 15th Annual National College Queen Contest . . . Janet Archer and Judy Houchin.

Judy, a sophomore German major, is also a member of Chi Omega sorority. She is also active in Angel Flight and Ipmanoes.

Kathleen Augustin and Heather Harden are the two other

Nebraska finalists. Miss Augustin represents NU and Miss Harden, Creighton.

The finalists were chosen on the basis of scholarship and campus leadership. This is not a bathing beauty contest.

Coeds Vie For Crown

Four Omaha University coeds are finalists in the Auto Show Queen contest. The competition is part of the annual Auto Show held at the Civic Auditorium.

OU's four Division Queens are Robyn Carmichael, Miss Special Interest; Linda Covault, Miss Compact; Linda Jordan, Miss Midget; and La Rae Koppit, Miss Classic. They will be competing with eight other Division Queens for the title of Miss Auto Show.

Robyn, a 19-year-old sophomore, is majoring in journalism, and is now serving as managing editor of the Gateway. She is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, vice-president of Press Club, treasurer of the Writing Club and a disc jockey for OU's radio station KWOU.

Linda Covault is an 18-year-old freshman with a physical education major and an interest in sports. She is a member of WRA, Ipmaues and was a candidate for Sigma Phi Epsilon "Diamond Princess."

Linda Jordan, an 18-year-old home economics major, is the secretary of the freshman class. Her other activities include Indianes, Ipmaues, Home Ec Club, and modeling.

La Rae is an 18-year-old language major with a 4.0 average. She won the Greek Week trophy for being a pledge with a perfect grade point. La Rae is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, Angel Flight and was chosen as this year's Typical Indiane. She was the Model Pledge for her sorority.

Miss Auto Show will be chosen by votes from people attending the auto exhibit this Saturday and Sunday. The winner will be announced Sunday night.

Students who wish to attend may obtain half-price tickets from any of OU's four finalists.

OU Dress Standards Praised

"Omaha University has the best standards, as far as the dress and appearance of the students, of any campus I've ever visited."

Mrs. Lucille Weck, national President of Zeta Tau Alpha, made this statement while on campus several weeks ago.

Mrs. Weck, of Berkeley, California, has been on over 80 university campuses in her position in the sorority.

Describing Berkeley as a "raunchy area", Mrs. Weck said "You will find when you graduate that it's a 'square world', and a degree of conformity, in dress, is often a virtue."

The Gateway will interview prospective Ma-ie day queen candidates today from 9:30 to 4:30 Rm. 116 Eng. Bldg.

Peterson Gets Ovation At J-Banquet

By Clarence Wilson

Dr. Paul V. Peterson, head of the journalism department, reigned over the Twelfth Annual Journalism Student Publications Awards Program, for the last time, Monday.

The Awards Dinner was established in the Spring of 1956 by Dr. Peterson, "in an effort to bring recognition for the excellent work done by students and alums."

Dr. Peterson attended the banquet sick with the flu, and because this is his last year at OU, was recognized by the OU Press Club and the students of journalism by a standing ovation as a plaque was presented to him by Diane Berry, past Tomahawk editor, on behalf of the students and Press Club.

Newspapers Challenged

Mark Acuff, who for the past two months has been an editorial and staff writer of the Sun newspapers and who founded, in 1962, the U. S. Student Press Association, was the guest speaker.

Acuff challenged college newspapers to present their readers with "views not heard."

OU President Kirk E. Naylor presented the Department Citation to Harold Andersen, president of the World Publishing Co. This award given to Andersen for the W-H's significant contribution to journalism education in the form of the A.P. wire in the journalism room, Engg. 116. Cal Richards of the W-H accepted on behalf of Andersen.

Broadcasters Recognized

The Alumni Award given in recognition of a degree of success reached by an OU journalism alum, was presented to KMTV's World Brief broadcaster, Paul Beavers.

Zeta Tau Alpha sorority presented Angus Campbell with its annual award in recognition of his work for the On Campus program broadcast on KYNE-TV on Wednesday nights at 9 p.m.

Bob Erxleben and John Weber received pewter mugs in recognition of their performance as Fall and Spring Gateway editors.

A special mug was also presented to Larry Clark, making him an honorary editor of The Gateway. Clark is the man responsible for the printing of The Gateway at Record Printing Co.

Diane Berry also received a mug in recognition of her hard job as Tomahawk editor.

Press Club president Lothar Luken presented the Press Club's "Rookie of the Year" award to Kathy Piccolo for an outstanding performance for a first year publications "slave."

Chet McCarthy was presented what has become the most important award given at the banquet: "the Outstanding Student" award. McCarthy was chosen by a vote of the students of journalism. The Gateway's "Our Man Chet," has accumulated an impressive record at OU. He is a sometime Gateway columnist, fulltime Gateway advertising manager, and also contributes presently to the On Campus show.

Warren T. Francke, Gateway advisor, stated that journalism students tend to stray away from high grade point averages. But despite this, four senior J scholars were recognized by Dr. Peterson as having 3.5 or better grade average, Vicki Adam, Dianne Johnson, Mardelle Susman and John Weber.

Students Get Keys

Fifteen first year journalism students were awarded bronze keys. They were: Judy Bradley, Robyn Carmichael, Mike Condon, Ellen Gorman, Chynne Kozier, Ray Kalinski, Roy Nordberg, Dan Parker, Kathy Piccolo, John Prescott, Joe Reiss, Dick Sanders, Jaey Sedlacek, Tom Thrift and Jerry Wozny.

Nine students received silver keys for two years of service to student publications. Harold Andersen of the W-H received a silver key for his second year as president of the World Publishing Co.

The students receiving awards were: Dave Clopton, Jim Cowman, Dan Eveland, Lothar Luken, Pat Rothe, Rudy Smith, Bobbie Spicer, Clarence Wilson and Judy Wilson.

Gold keys went to seven third year students: Vicki Adam, Diane Berry, Angus Campbell, Bob Erxleben, Rich Lundren, Chet McCarthy and John Weber.

Students Discuss Dress, Boo Bad Threads

By Rich Lundgren

What is irresponsible dress?

"I wouldn't have the slightest idea," replies Dean of Student Personnel Donald Pflasterer.

Be that as it may, the Student Council recently proposed a resolution allowing "reasonable" dress on campus at any time. This was later revised to allow slacks and shorts, though not in an extreme style, anywhere on the campus except in classes.

The Council last week attempted to state what is "irresponsible" dress, and The Gateway this week presents what the students polled believe to be "irresponsible" dress.

Nineteen-year-old Paul Brumfield says, "If a limit should be place on the length of a dress, it shouldn't be below the knee or more than six inches above it. No shorts should be allowed on campus."

Wear In Good Taste

Brumfield goes on to say that college students represent seven per cent of the population. "We should try to represent this seven per cent the best way we can. Most people think college students are bums, and we have to try to better the image."

Speaking of good taste, Dean Pflasterer indicated that there was some awareness of an image. He remarked that last week a missionary visiting the campus complimented him on how well-dressed the students are.

After all, says the Dean, because OU is a community university students should wear "what is in good taste."

A well-endowed lass, questioned as to irresponsible dress, replied, "Underwear would be the only thing that wouldn't be proper."

Several indicated since they were in college, the students should decide for himself what is proper.

Nineteen-year-old Dave Decker says, "A college student should be mature enough to know what to wear."

Grubbies Are Out

A 20-year-old male student echoed the same feeling. "I don't think there is such a thing as irresponsible dress for the college student. By the time a person enters college, he should be old enough to decide for himself what to wear."

Pflasterer says "We're not telling the students what to wear, but what not to wear."

Pat Bunz answered, "Dirty unkempt, ill-fitting and mismatched clothes are out on campus."

A lady-like sophomore feels "Grubbies are out. People are here for an education and should dress the part." However, this lady didn't indicate what dress has to do with education.

But Lothar A. Luken, in sandals and sporting a hairpiece on his chin, has an answer. "Not a damn thing. You can get just as good an education bare or fully dressed. Clothes don't make an education."

History major Bill Larson agreed with the lady-like sophomore on the dress query.

"They, the administration, should ban the boys that don't wear socks to school. This gives the school an unhealthy look."

Speaking of health-sockless student correlation, one OU instructor thought, "Dress should at least provide sanitary conditions in the school. You shouldn't come to school with bare feet and then stick them up on the desk."

Bobbi Baltzer's thought is that "Girls wearing clothes too tight, too short or too low is in very poor taste."

Dress Decides Sex

For Delores McArthur, irresponsible dress lies in three categories: "(1) Dress that hides a female's identity, i.e., extremely masculine; (2) dress that hides or disguises a male's identity, i.e., extremely feminizes him; and (3) dress that makes it entirely too obvious to determine what sex a person is."

For Miss Baltzer, sex determination is a factor in dress. She feels that "guys with hair so long you can't tell them from a girl, is irresponsible."

The sockless Joes got socked by a number of students with their answers. Mary Medich and Lois Handley agreed that the sockless "were irresponsible."

That's the way a part of the some 50 students polled defined "irresponsible dress."

As for the Student Council, the definition has been kicked around more times than a stray cat.

But that doesn't really matter. As one student out of the half-hundred sampled said, "Who gives a damn."
